

Kettlehole Trail

This trail is an easy walk around a large dry kettle hole. A kettle hole is a circular hollow created when a block of glacier ice was buried and later melted. At the southern end of the trail is a side path to the bottom of the kettle hole. A portion of the main trail is on the road.

- Blue (.32 mi)
- Yellow (.02)
- Contours 10 feet

- Conservation Properties
- Point of Interest
- P Parking

SCCOG Sanborn-Centennial Council of Governments

